

Summer Institute with the Geographic Alliance of ND!

"The World, Our Village"

June 11-15, 2007 • Fargo, ND

Experience North Dakota and the strength of classroom resources it provides by attending the ND Geographic Alliance Summer Institute. Enrich the depth of your classroom presentation styles from teachers recognized for their work in implementing a wide range of learning styles in their classrooms. Expand your hands-on repertoire of computer assisted learning about our region utilizing such technologies as GIS, GPS and Google Earth and low-tech activities to bring the world into your classroom and to help your students develop a worldwide view of interconnectedness.

Whether you are an elementary teacher looking for great active learning activities or a secondary educator looking to give students depth of understanding, this institute is for you. Two field trips and many free resources highlight the Institute. While expanding your network of colleagues who are valuable resources in the job of educating our communities, remember the world is a village and it takes all of us working together to educate our children! The keynote speaker is David Smith, author of "If the World Were a Village."

Institute cost is $100 for 2 hours of graduate credit (approval pending). NDGA will cover the cost of all Institute activities and resources.
